

Did You Know

By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT the greatest uprising of mob violence in this city occurred on Aug. 16, 1861, when 700 white persons incensed by a report of an attack by several negroes on a respected German woman, stormed through the negro neighborhoods of the town destroying and burning property. The event was an outgrowth of an affair which occurred on Sunday evening, August 15. As the wife of a prominent German citizen with her child was walking down the street, a party of negroes came along and insulted her. When the matter became generally known on Monday, it created intense excitement among the citizens. Thirteen suspicious negro characters were arrested and lodged in jail and during the day crowds of people gathered about the jail and mayor's office. In the evening the crowd at first numbering 300 started a parade through the negro neighborhoods of the city "to frighten the colored folk and show them the feeling of the people over the outrage some of them allegedly committed," newspapers of the time commented. Mayor Jason Case, Marshal Maiden and many other leading citizens attempted to refrain and pacify the crowd and were efficient in doing so. The Herald of the time relates, until the group arrived opposite the house of Robert Randolph, a S. Pickaway-st colored barber. As a part of the group pressed in near the barber shop, a gun was fired into the crowd. The bullet struck an old man named Bowers who with Mayor Case and others was attempting to pacify the crowd. The group by this time had grown to 700 and was at once converted into a mob wild with excitement and determined upon violence and vengeance. Hundreds of persons rushed into the Randolph house breaking windows and doors, destroying its contents and finally setting fire to it. During the fury, a heavy rain came on, but it retarded neither the raging fire nor the efforts of the mob. After accomplishing the total destruction of the Randolph house, inflicting other damage in the neighborhood, and making some ineffectual efforts to find Randolph, the crowd dispersed, leaving in its wake a scene of destruction.

That 72 years ago, there were more pigeons in Pickaway-co than have ever been known. During the months of February and March of 1861, 200,000 of the birds were shipped by railroad from here to the eastern cities and numerous wagon-loads were sent to Columbus and other neighboring cities. In one day of February of that year, 75,000 pigeons were caught in and near Circleville for shipping. These comprised 250 barrels, weighing 16 tons. They were shipped for the owners by the Adams Express Co. The net profit on the above was over $7,000.

That the first company of volunteers formed in Pickaway-co to fight for the Union in the Civil War left this city on Thursday, April 18, 1861. The company, comprised of 20 men, was raised within 24 hours after President Lincoln issued his proclamation for 75,000 volunteers. Another company numbering 86, was formed two weeks later under the command of Capt. C. B. Mason. Both companies were mustered in at Camp Dennison near Lancaster, Pa. The first unit was Company G, 2nd regiment of the Ohio Volunteer Militia. The officers included J. H. Groce, W. C. Porter, Ren Huston, C. A. Earnest and M. McCov. The first company returned home on Aug. 2, 1861, receiving a grand reception from the home-folks. The unit entered the town through an arch of evergreens which had been placed at the far end of N. Court-st. A grand parade followed to the court house where Jonathan Renick delivered a speech of welcome.

'PROSPERITY BILL,' PASSED BY HOUSE, NOW FACES SENATE

Tenth Pippin

ECONOMY ACT CAUSING WOE

Reed Charges That Heartless Cruelty Shown Veterans By Measure.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Charges that veterans are being treated with heartless cruelty under the $500,000,000 economy act piled in Congress today. Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, leading senate foe of bonus payment demands and for years an advocate of veterans' retrenchment, went over to the opposition group.

"The administration is paying transportation of the forestry camp men on a basis of 2,200 miles for each worker enlisted," the senator declared. "At the same time, it is denying transportation to veterans discharged from the hospitals. This is a shocking injustice."

Senator Huey P. (Kingfish) Long (D) of Louisiana asked if it would not be better to "undo this whole bill."

"I doubt if a corporal's guard would have voted for the economy bill if we had known of these harsh administrative provisions," Reed replied.

Senator Black (D) of Alabama revealed he has called President Roosevelt's attention to the fact that there are 15,000 vacant beds in government hospitals.

"Yet veterans with service-connected disabilities incurred in peace-time are being denied hospitalization," he added.

BEER ORDER SET

COLUMBUS, May 27.—Beer may be manufactured and sold in Ohio cities and villages regardless of local ordinances to the contrary unless the ordinances have been established by referendum, the state liquor control commission ruled here today.

The ruling, which was given to Frazier Reams of Toledo Lucas-co prosecutor, was announced by L. L. Faris, director of the beer commission.

Effort to Insert Sales Tax Fails; Final Vote is 324 to 76

TRUST LAWS 'OUT'

Senate Vote Expected Sometime Next Week

WASHINGTON, May 27.—President Roosevelt's "Prosperity Bill"—embracing a new deal for industry and the jobless but providing a heavier tax for the little income taxpayer an the average citizen—was sent to the senate today after its triumphal passage in the house. The bill, which suspends anti-trust laws to permit combination of industry and labor, carries a $3,300,000,000 public works program and a $700,000,000 tax plan, probably will be called up in the senate late next week.

Drastic revision of the tax plan in the senate was forecast as a result of revelations in the Morgan inquiry and widespread opposition to harsh tax increases upon the average citizen.

VOTE 329 TO 76

After Democratic leaders twice saved the bill from being wrecked by narrow margins, the house rallied on the final vote and passed it 324 to 76.

Before final passage a bi-partisan coalition proposed to substitute a manufacturers' sales tax for the income tax boost, gasoline tax, bank check tax and other miscellaneous sales tax, but the effort failed, 137 to 285.

Backers of the sales tax provision, bitterly disappointed, charged that "deals" were made on high-way allocations and political pressure was used to defeat their attempt. Several members who had announced that they would support the sales tax turned against it on the roll-call.

As passed the bill carried a tax amendment growing directly out of the fact that J. P. Morgan and company paid no income tax for two years.

Under this amendment taxpayers cannot use net losses in one year to offset income taxes in the next. Claims were made by Democratic spokesmen—and disputed—that the provision would curtail the deductions made by the Morgan company if a similar situation arises in the future.

FILL LOOP HOLES

To quell the rebellion against the tax provisions, the ways and means committee promised to open next week a general investigation of the tax laws to plug up loopholes.

The industrial recovery bill, called the capstone of the president's program, authorizes:

Formation of trade associations to set up codes of fair competition with approval of the president, the codes being designed to fix minimum wages, limit hours of labor and fix other working conditions.

All anti-trust laws in conflict with the provisions are set aside. The president can enforce the act by licensing industries, and closing a factory by denying it a license for violation of the fair competition code.

Provides a $3,300,000,000 public works bond issue for public buildings, highways, flood control, rivers and harbors, slum clearance, naval construction and similar projects.

PLANE IS HUNTED

DENVER, May 27.—Two airplanes today joined the volunteer searchers combing the rugged mountain area in the vicinity of James Peak, about 50 miles northwest of here, for a cabin monoplane seen to crash into a ravine there.

The wrecked plane is believed here to be that of Dr. Victor DeWar, Grand Junction, Colo., physician and flier. Dr. DeWar, Mrs. DeWar and two unidentified passengers took off from the Denver airport for Grand Junction yesterday in a six-passenger cabin plane, and had not reached their destination at an early hour today.

GOVERNOR NOT TO SIGN EXTENDERS

Clerk of Courts Ferd M. Pickens and Mrs. Mary G. Morris, county recorder, will enjoy the benefits of two term-extender bills passed by the Ohio General Assembly and signed by Governor White, but the hopes of other county officials to receive like extenders were doomed Friday when Gov. White announced that "the raid for term-extenders had gone far enough," and he would sign no more bills of this kind.

Mr. Pickens and Mrs. Morris will serve until Jan. 1, 1937, as the result of the clerk's and recorder's term-extender bills.

CRASH HURTS DUVALL MAN

Al Musselman Has Broken Knee In Accident North Of Bloomfield.

Al Musselman, of Duvall, sustained a fractured knee Friday afternoon when his Pontiac sedan collided with a Chevrolet sedan driven by W. H. Freedman, Cincinnati, paint salesman, on Route 23, two miles north of South Bloomfield.

The Musselman car was going north and the Freedman car south. The Pontiac overturned and went into a ditch and the two occupants, Freedman and Albert B. C. Wahlke, also of Cincinnati, were trapped and could not extricate themselves until aid came.

Both of the men sustained slight cuts on the hands from flying glass while Musselman, besides the injured knee, was cut about the face. He was removed to Ashville and treated by a physician there.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Bryan Custer and Karl Radcliff were called to the scene and directed traffic until the wrecked cars could be removed from the highway.

The Chevrolet was brought to the Circleville Motors garage where it was found that the front of the car was practically demolished and that the frame was broken. The Pontiac was taken to an Ashville garage. It, too, was badly damaged.

Mrs. F. E. Barnhill, N. Court-st., suffered bruises Friday when the automobile she was driving struck a telephone pole near the icehouse.

WORLEY URGES COMPLETION OF CITY BUILDING

COLUMBUS, May 27.—Urging the building of the east wing to Columbus' incompleting city hall, Mayor Henry Worley today had declared in favor of the $220,000 project to save rent costs.

The original cost of $400,000 was pared down one-half by the mayor in his proposal, which was contained in his annual report submitted to council yesterday.

WIND AND RAIN CAUSE DAMAGE, POLES DOWNED

Inch of Rain Falls in 15-Minute Period, Dr. Clarke Reports

TEMPERATURE 90

Several Window Panes at School Broken

The heaviest rain that has fallen in Circleville for a number of years was recorded here Friday afternoon when one inch of precipitation was noted in a 15-minute space. Coming suddenly from an apparent mild-looking cloud, the rain storm beginning at 2:45 p. m. beat down continually for a quarter hour, during which time traffic was impeded and much damage inflicted to telephone poles and wires by sharp lightning which accompanied it.

Approximately 150 telephones were out of order as the result of the storm, the repair department of the Citizens Telephone Co. reported.

DID IT RAIN?

Charles Sampson, 305 E. Franklin-st., wire chief at the Citizens Telephone Co., will tell the whole world that Friday's rain was the hardest that has ever fallen in Circleville. And he should know.

When the rain began he was on the roof of the Rose Terrace flats, N. Court-st., helping Charles Garner, another telephone employee, install a phone. When Sampson started to leave the roof, he discovered that the ladder was missing. "So I just had to lay down and take it, hail and all," he jovially reported Saturday.

ported Saturday. The greatest damage was noted on the Kingston-pk. southeast of town, where a number of poles were down. At numerous other places in the county.

The dollar crashed 7 to 74 points against foreign currencies, the Dutch guilder scoring the biggest rise. Sterling spurted 4 1/2 cents to $3.96 1/2. Weakness was duplicated in foreign markets.

THE CHALLENGE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day, upon each occasion of its return should stimulate us to greater loyalty and a finer patriotism, manifested by a deeper consecration to the task of making America great and good, of establishing more securely the principles of justice and liberty for which she stands.

We are greatly in need of training to make us peace-conscious. No one is shouting for peace. No one is dying for peace. Peace has no advocates as spectacular as those who with fiery oratory proclaimed the burning issues of the day. If the Prince of Peace had His way, there would be no violence. The principle of armed force is contrary to the doctrine of love which Christ proclaimed. It is our duty today to sow seeds of love and peace and brotherhood and make impossible future wars exacting such heavy toll in the death of our heroic soldiers.

Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH MEMORIAL SUNDAY?

Improved Uniform International LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
© 1933, Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for May 28

JESUS AND HIS FRIENDS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 13:1-14:9.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. John 15:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Some Friends of Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus as Honored Guest.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being a Friend of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Showing Our Friendship for Jesus.

A better title for this lesson would suggest Jesus as giving a prophetic outline of events in the interval between his crucifixion and his second coming.

I. The Occasion of the Prophecy (vv. 1-4).

As Jesus was passing out of the temple for the last time on his way to the Mount of Olives where he gave this discourse, the disciples reminded him of the splendor of the building, to which he replied that not one stone should be left upon another. When seated upon the Mount, the disciples came privately, according to Matthew 24:3, with a threefold question requesting further information.

1. "When shall these things be?"
2. "What shall be the sign of thy coming?"
3. "The end of the age?"

That which follows is given in answer to these three questions.

II. The Characteristics of the Age Between the Crucifixion and Christ's Second Coming (vv. 5-23).

1. The appearance of many deceivers (vv. 5, 6). Many false Christs have pressed their claims as being the Messiah since Jesus went back to heaven. As this age draws to a close we may expect these claims to increase.

2. Wars and strife among the nations (vv. 7, 8). The history of the centuries since Christ's crucifixion is written in blood.

3. Earthquakes, famines, and troubles (v. 8). Though these calamities grow increasingly severe as the days lengthen, the intelligent disciple is not surprised or alarmed for these are the precursors of a new order, the birth-pangs of a new age when the Kingdom of Christ shall be established on this earth. Let the believer in Christ in this time of darkness look up, for his redemption draweth nigh.

4. Dreadful persecutions (v. 9). God's witness shall be delivered up to councils, beaten in the synagogues, and shall be brought before rulers and kings for Christ's sake as a testimony against them.

5. Universal evangelism (v. 10). The gospel of the kingdom, according to Matthew 24:14, shall be preached in all the world for a witness. This is not the gospel of the grace of God which is now being preached, but a new evangelism which shall be proclaimed by elect Israelites immediately preceding the coming of Christ (See Romans 11:13-15; Rev. 7:4-10).

6. The universal hatred of the believing Israelites (vv. 11-13). They shall be severely persecuted. Civil government shall be against them. Their one duty notwithstanding shall be to preach the gospel of the kingdom, depending upon the Holy Spirit for wisdom and power. For this specific duty they are sealed with the seal of God in their foreheads (Rev. 7:3). This will be the real Pentecost of which the outpouring of the Spirit at the beginning of the church was a type (Joel 2:28-32; Acts 2:16).

7. The great tribulation (vv. 14-23). This is the consummation of the age immediately preceding the glorious appearing of Christ. Out of the missionary efforts of converted Israel shall eventuate the unparalleled horrors so vividly pictured here.

tured here. Daniel's "abomination of desolation" is the Antichrist—"the man of sin" (Dan. 9:25, 27; Dan. 11:36; II Thess. 3:3, 4), who will direct this reign of terror.

III. The Glorious Return of the Lord (vv. 24-27).
Jesus' return is the superlative event, the one to which all prophecies have pointed and to which all ages are moving with unflinching precision.

IV. Application of the Prophecy (vv. 28-37).

1. As these events multiply in the earth, we know that the coming of the Lord draweth nigh (vv. 28, 29).
2. The Jewish race shall retain its integrity until the end (v. 30). The perpetuity of Israel is the miracle of the ages.

3. Certainty of fulfillment (v. 31). The unflinching guarantee of this is the words of Jesus Christ.

4. The time of Christ's coming is unknown (v. 32). In view of this fact it is folly to set the time.

5. The proper behavior in view of Christ's imminent coming (vv. 33-37) is watchfulness and prayer.

Sure of the Future

Being in Christ, it is safe to forget the past; it is profitable to be diligent in the present; it is possible to be sure of the future.—A. MacLaren

What specific issues are the churches stressing today to abolish war?

Before the World War those Christian churches that opposed war did so generally on the basis of individual pacifism. Today the emphasis of the churches is put upon prevention of war rather than upon non-participation. Even the so-called pacifist groups are carrying on their work educationally rather than making an attempt to convert large numbers of people to individual pacifism. One group of friends is attempting through peace caravans to reach not only those who are ready for their own advanced position but those not vitally interested in the peace problem. The peace caravans are manned by college students who tour the country holding missionary campaigning for peace will be needed before there will be enough converts to insure the political success of the peace movement.

SHIRES OBTAINS LAWYER TO FIGHT LOUISVILLE SUIT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 27.—Arthur "Whitman" Shires surveyed his latest trouble, today and found the prospects disconcerting, especially the suit for $50,000 damages which came as an anti-climax to a knock-down-and-drag-out affair which landed Mr. Jack Deacon in the hospital.

Things looked so dark that the modest Columbus first baseman hired an attorney, Roscoe Searcy. Searcy will represent Shires at the hearing on June 20 regarding the malicious assault charge brought against Shires.

Shires, well plastered with bandages and adhesive tape, gave $1,000 bond in police court. A like bond was posted by James Adair, Louisville second baseman who was held on the same charge of assault.

It was explained that Adair "thought he was being rolled by a girl," and Deacon went to the girl's defense. Shires, police were told, rallied to the defense of Adair and in the mixup Deacon was pitched downstairs by Shires, he charged.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

IT'S mighty hard for some women to get any kind of a compliment out of their husbands. A guy will tell a girl all kinds of dizzy things about herself, but after he marries her he's afraid he'll run out of adjectives for the other women if he uses them all up on his wife.

Well, this here Mrs. Jones was fishing for a compliment. "You kinda thought I was different from the other girls you knew, didn't you, John?"
"Why, yes, you was different."
"Wasn't that why you married me?"
"Yes, you're right there."
"Well, tell me then, how was I different from the other girls you knew?"
"Why, you'd marry me and they wouldn't."

A hail storm which accompanied the rain caused little damage. Several window panes at the Circleville high school building were

Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weather observer, said that the rain was the hardest that he has noted for sometime. "The cloud from which it proceeded looked very mild and didn't appear to be laden with much moisture," Dr. Clarke said.

Despite the heavy rain, Friday's temperature soared up to the 90 degree mark causing the day to be set down as one of the hottest of the year. Dr. Clarke reported that

Recognition of Soviet

WHETHER the action of President Roosevelt in addressing a copy of his peace message to the president of Russia constituted recognition of the soviet is a question that has stirred considerable discussion in Washington.

Many, some of them supposedly well versed in such matters, contend that it was at least technical recognition.

We believe this may be conceded without damaging the cause of advocates of non-recognition.

The president wanted his appeal to apply to Russia as well as other nations and took the only course available to get it before that country in a way in which it would receive consideration. His action was recognition as far as the immediate purpose in mind, evidently deemed by him an urgent one, was concerned.

This, though, does not mean that the wall between the United States and Russia has been broken down. It doesn't mean that diplomatic relations have been established between the two countries and the door opened to the advantages or disadvantages that this would bring.

Technical recognition may have been given the soviet but not practical recognition. Only the appointment of an ambassador to Moscow and acceptance of a diplomatic representative from the Reds would meet the latter requirements.

It may be that Mr. Roosevelt contemplates extending formal and complete recognition when and if this be done it will be done in the recognized manner and not indirectly. This seems to be a safe assumption.

But we notice that Henry Ford, who said that prosperity was more harmful than adversity, hasn't thrown his money away.

How Tammany Thrives

FURTHER strength to the fashion movement in New York should be given by the report of the Civil Service Reform association showing how Tammany violates the civil service law in placing its henchmen in secure and well-paying jobs.

According to the report, based upon an examination of records, New York City taxpayers now are supporting a $7,000,000 political payroll. Salaries of these political appointees, many of whom perform no essential service, range from $2,500 to $12,000 a year.

"The exemption of positions from competitive examination," said the report, "would of itself be of relatively little importance were it not for the fact that at least 85 percent of such positions are filled solely to take care of political followers. Generally they are filled in utter disregard of the needs of the service, and in ruthless defiance of the public demand for economies in public administration."

Mayor O'Brien was attacked in the report for this appointment policies.

The condition complained of is not new. It reflects one of the routine methods of Tammany in keeping its stranglehold on the nation's largest city. But, in view of the rebellious attitude shown by the voters in the last mayoralty election, turning the spotlight on it now may have a wholesome effect in the coming campaign.

An eminent financial expert declares that conditions are improving. Nevertheless we think that conditions are improving.

True to His Colors

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

Wolfe had been gone an hour when Jess came back from the moor. She looked self-conscious and shy, but was able to smile and shake back her hair. Mary Mascall was still sitting under the cypress.

"I've been waiting tea, child. John Wolfe had to get back."

Jess sat down on the grass with her arms about her knees.

"Was he —"

"What, Jess?"

"Angry?"

"Angry! I never saw a man more pleased. I told him you were out on the moor somewhere. He told me to thank you and to say he is as proud of Turpin as — Angry, indeed!"

Jasper Turrell was in his greenhouse at Beech Hill, nosing about in his keen, mistrustful way, his long lips puckered about the stump of a cigar. Turrell never fully enjoyed the good things that belonged to him, simply because of a natural meanness and thinness of disposition. Nothing ever quite pleased him. He was forever grumbling at his gardeners, and suspecting them of selling fruit and vegetables behind his back. He made a habit of counting the peaches and nectarines on his trees, and any discrepancies had to be explained. If a friend admired his roses, he would sneer bitterly and say, "Nothing like what they should have been! I can't make these men of mine prune and syringe properly." He was forever discovering ugly insects under the stones of life, focusing the one gap in a bid of gorgeous flowers.

"Are you there, Dad?"

The younger Turrell's figure showed through the glass, distorted slightly by crinkles in the panes.

"Hallo, Tor —"

Hector Turrell's typical attitude was one of lounging self-satisfaction. He was, what many a poor cad desired to be, the ideal of impossible dreams on thirty shillings a week. Young Turrell had his fists stuffed into the pockets of his riding breeches, his black-and-white check waistcoat hunched up over them. He stood with his feet wide apart, and his lower jaw thrust out.

"I have just picked up a bit of news."

"News, eh?"

"That chap Wolfe had put up his plate in Navestock."

"Bosh!"

"It's true. Young Kinnis told me this morning. He's up on Peachy Hill."

Jasper Turrell's red eyelids came close together. He twisted the cigar round in his mouth.

"What the devil does he mean by that? Surely Threadgold had an agreement —"

"What about old Crabbe?"

"Crabbe!"

"He may have taken the chap up," Turrell snarled.

This particular meeting of the Navestock Guardians was destined to be memorable by reason of its implications. Robert Flemming held his usual place as chairman in the big, padded-leather chair, his fine florid and whitening head deserving the brush of the portrait painter. The room was a dull room with long, melancholy windows looking out upon a yard. Turrell sat on Flemming's right, his long legs stretched out, a sprawling figure that sneered. Little Wilks always had a fistful of papers, which he sniffed at attentively, much like a squirrel devouring a nut. Landry and Petersen, two country members, sat side by side, exchanging scandalous stories in gloating undertones. The other members were tradesmen—heavy men who took their duties with a serious eye on personal economies. Old Crump, the clerk, leathery, pink-gilled, and sardonic, had mischievous twinkles in his porcine eyes. He turned his impertinent and abrupt nose this way and that like an old dog casting about for a scent. He was a cynic, and it delighted him to see people lose their tempers.

He had a chance that morning when it fell to him to read a certain formal letter that had been addressed to the Navestock Guardians. The letter complained of a "nuisance" in George Lane, and the writer desired to have the "nuisance" abated. The details were put with strength and savour. Crump sniffed as he read it. A familiar and penetrating odour seemed to force its way into the room.

Crump took a delight in setting people by the ears, provided it could be done delicately and without personal inconvenience. There was an uneasy scraping of feet, a tilting of chairs. Queer, slanting glances were thrown at Jasper Turrell. His fellow Guardians watched him inquisitively, but they shirked meeting Turrell's eyes.

"George Lane, is it, Mr. Crump? And from Burgess the cobbler?"

"That's the signature, Mr. Flemming."

The silence was full of hesitancy. Turrell drew in his long legs, and sat up with a jerk of defiance.

"I am not shy, gentlemen. It seems that someone has a quarrel with my property. Let us have it out. If anyone wishes to discuss my management of my property —"

He looked round insolently, ready to thrust a challenge under his neighbours' noses. But though Turrell was an unpopular man, he was the chief of a clan, and his fellow-clansmen knew it. It was a subtle question of self-preservation, and these men of property instantly drew together when the interests of property were threatened. A common instinct made for unanimity. Like members of a big family they might quarrel among themselves, but they rallied and drew together when one of the clan was threatened by an outsider.

Johnson the butcher, the colour of his own raw meat, spoke up gruffly from a corner.

"Mr. Chairman, seems to me, sir, Mr. Turrell's a gentleman who can be left to look after his own property. We shake along very well in Navestock, sir. I don't hold with mischief-making."

Turrell smiled, his long mouth crinkling curiously between his sandy whiskers. He and Johnson had a proper understanding.

Robert Flemming's eyes wandered from face to face.

"Has anyone —"

Wilks's thin and acrid voice cut in.

"It appears to me to be a vexatious complaint —"

"Tss, that's the very word I was trying to think of, Mr. Wilks."

"It nails the thing to the counter, Mr. Hubbard."

"Like a bad coin, sir. I always say that things ought to be done with good feeling. I am against stirring up bad blood. The men of property in the town have public spirit."

Robert Flemming turned his head this way and that, gravely, questioning. Turrell lay back in his chair.

"I am quite content to leave myself in your hands, gentlemen."

"I think we can leave a gentleman of Mr. Turrell's position to control his own property."

Wilks's eyes twinkled as though he had cracked an unusually fine nut.

Turrell's half-closed eyes gleamed under their light lashes.

"You can leave the matter to me. I'll look into it, and have a proper opinion."

They had carried the question thus far, and there they dropped it. Crump was scribbling in a book. The Guardians decided that he should acknowledge the receipt of the letter, nothing more. They passed on to discuss certain items in the workhouse accounts.

From the meeting of the Board of Guardians, Jasper Turrell went straight to Dr. Threadgold's house on Mulberry Green. Threadgold was out, and Turrell was offered the urbanities of the new assistant, Mr. Talbot Tweedy. This young man wore spectacles, and had something of the look of a very wise guinea-pig. He was badly spotted with acne, and simpered like a nervous girl. Turrell had no use for him. He sat down and said that he would wait for Dr. Threadgold.

Turrell had to wait an hour; full time to think himself into an ugly temper. When Threadgold came in, buoyant and effusive, bumping like a cork on the froth of his own cheeriness, the very shine of the man's face made Turrell savage.

"Look here, Threadgold, I want you to go round to George Lane."

"I will go round this evening."

"You'll find nothing to quarrel with. But I just want an opinion for form's sake. You understand?"

Turrell went straight from Mulberry Green to George Lane. Discretion was not in him when he was angry. He never restrained himself, and his passions were emetic.

Old Burgess was at work in his shop, his bald head visible through the diamond panes of the window. The tap-tap of his hammer went on steadily. Turrell gave one stare and stood in the doorway.

"Hallo, you don't like this neighbourhood, Burgess! How's that?"

The cobbler glanced up with a sulky, browbeaten smile. His squatting, rounded figure with its white apron and blue shirt sleeves seemed symbolical of Labor crouching half rebelliously at the feet of Capital.

"You ought to know, Mr. Turrell."

An insolent slyness glimmered in Burgess's eyes, and Turrell, whose soul was sinewed with insolence, understood the look, and reacted to it.

"You have been put up to it. I know that. You have made your bargain. Clear out in a month."

"I was just going to say, sir —"

"I don't want to hear what you were going to say. You have notice to quit, and that settles it. I am not going to have mischief made behind my back. I'm not the man to stand it."

He walked on with fuming self-satisfaction.

Hay Fever 'Season' Near, Take Precautions Now

Treatment Before the Disease Gains Headway Is More Beneficial—Sensitivity Tests Aid in Determining Cause and Remedy

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

AT THIS time of the year I receive many letters requesting information about hay fever. We are approaching the hay fever season. The victims of this ailment know that unless they take the necessary precautions they are doomed to weeks of intolerable suffering.

Hay fever is a disease characterized by a sensitivity to certain pollens. The pollens may come from trees, grasses or ragweed. When exposed to these pollens the victim complains of itching and congestion of the eyes. There is a thin and irritating discharge from the nose. The inside of the mouth itches and there are violent attacks of sneezing.

"Perennial Hay Fever"

The symptoms are aggravated by repeated exposure to the offending pollen or plant. As a rule, the suffering is more marked in the morning and relieved as evening approaches. The sensitivity persists as long as the offending substance is within reach of the patient.

"Perennial hay fever" is a form of hay fever present throughout the year. The sufferer from this form of hay fever is sensitive to animal danders, vegetable powders, house dust, foods, or drugs. The symptoms are identical with those caused by a pollen or plant.

Do not confuse hay fever with asthma. The asthmatic sufferer has difficulty in breathing and complains that he cannot catch his breath. The hay fever patient can breathe, but it causes him great discomfort. Of course a victim of hay fever may also be a sufferer from asthma, both diseases existing at the same time.

Vaccine Treatment

It is only within recent years that a hopeful remedy for hay fever has been discovered. The treatment is not successful in all cases. It consists of the injection of vaccines made from a solution of the ragweed pollen or other pollen to which the victim is sensitive.

The injections must be given over a long period of time and preferably before the hay fever season begins. By means of "sensitivity tests," it is possible to determine the plant, pollen or substance to which the sufferer is sensitive. When this is discovered, the vaccine is made and then injected.

Unfortunately, the relief is only temporary and the injections must be repeated. If you are a sufferer from hay fever, now is the time to consult with your physician. Also, I would advise you to take the necessary measures if you are a victim of autumn hay fever or perennial hay fever.

Laughing Around the World

With IRVIN S. COBB

That Made Him Even

By IRVIN S. COBB

AFTER the latest election, the members of a famous Democratic Club had a banquet to celebrate the Democratic victory. The newly elected Governor came down from upstate to sit at the guest table and join his political brethren in the love feast.

After several dependable local orators had been heard, the toastmaster called upon the Governor for a speech. In introducing him, the toastmaster rather goaded him for some of his personal beliefs. He said that the Governor formerly had shown Socialist leanings and that he still was a Radical. In fact, as the saying goes, he rather got under the Governor's skin.

Slowly the latter rose to his feet. "Gentlemen," he said, "the usages of polite society and the

CIRCLEVILLE SCHOOLS' PAPER—DEPARTMENT OF THE CIRCLEVILLE HERALD
NO. 62, VOL. 6, ISSUE 262. CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO. SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1933

Education Is Needed, Says Mr. Eagleson

BY SUPT. J. O. EAGLESON

During the early history of mankind schools were not required for the training of the youth in primitive society because the conditions of living were so simple then that they could be mastered by direct contact and experience of the young with the old. But during our time social and economic conditions have so changed and society has become so complex that no one would be capable of fitting in this modern progress without a course of training in a systematic manner. Thus it has been found more economical for society to organize schools of training for our youth. The demands for educational training do not come from educational institutions themselves. They come from the ones of society outside of the schools.

The American high school has its origin and its present curriculum of studies founded upon the foregoing in a very striking manner. Developing rapidly as it has in the past 40 or 50 years, the high school has expanded in keeping with the exacting demands made by society for equipping the youth with such social experiences as the race needs for entering adult profession or occupations. It has offered new courses to meet the needs of our present pupil population, as these demands are made upon it by our new advances in our ever increasing standards of living.

This high school population has never been equal in numbers in the past as in any other country. Through compulsory attendance laws it is now approaching the total number of high school youth of this age in our country. Other nations are now engaged in an effort to develop for their youths some of the opportunities which democratic American youth are privileged to enjoy.

All these added courses to the high school curriculum require specialists to teach them. This pupil population is as varied as society itself. Hence a wide range of subjects has grown up during the past half century for taking care of this varied pupil population. In our country almost all of this has been furnished free to the pupils. Hence, the cost of running these high schools has mounted into millions of dollars. All this has been raised through taxation. The people have borne this so far without much murmuring. Possibly more complaint has been registered against the increasing cost during the past year than ever before. There is a limit to the amount the people can pay for the upkeep of these high schools.

However much society needs the training given in the high school, some reduction in the cost is imminent. We hear and read much about how the reduction should be made. The depression has brought us face to face with this problem. Many curricula have been made during the past year and more are to come. We have been called upon to balance our budgets. It must be done in industry to keep the wheels moving. Schools are forced to do the same.

Critics of the American high school have at times failed to understand the social background out of which our secondary education has evolved. They have been influenced by traditional views regarding the curriculum. Traditional subjects and traditional methods of teaching are being eliminated in the interests of an educational plan more closely related to the present-day industry, commerce and professional life.

If any changes are to be made in the high school curriculum due to economy from a financial standpoint, the teaching profession should be consulted about these. The educational institutions must set up the methods by which the objectives are accomplished. One of the gravest difficulties in the development of a sound secondary education in our country is the maladministration of institutions resulting from interference by the lay boards.

GOLF TEAM

Circleville High school's golf team played Westerville on the Pickaway Country club golf links Thursday afternoon.

Lee Cook, John Mader, John Jenkins and Bob Fries made up the team from Circleville. John Jenkins and Bob Fries tied for low man on nine holes. They both shot a 35.

Bob Fries was low man on 18 holes shooting a pretty 78. Lee Cook shot an 89 on 18 holes. Johnny Mader shot nine holes and then conceded to his opponent. The final score was nine to three with Circleville on the long end of the score.

The organization wishes to express that there will be no charges.

Elizabeth Dowden, Sophomore, is the Editor for this issue.

Rader Honored

In recognition of her excellent interpretation of Loranda, the maid, in the senior class play, "The King Rides By," Gene Rader has been awarded the director's pin which is emblematic of outstanding achievement in dramatics.

Miss Rader had more cues than any of the feminine parts and she also had a dual role to portray. She was very consistent in changing from Loranda, the maid, to Lil, the crook, at all times. Her work was a paramount factor in making the play a success.

M. HOOPER SPEAKS BEFORE STUDENTS

Merle Hooper of Cleveland was the speaker at an assembly held Tuesday at 3:00. He talked on "China and its Ways." Fred C. Clark introduced the speaker.

Mr. Hooper said the oldest date in Chinese History is 2852 B. C. He told the school that the Chinese have 43,000 characters while the English language has only 26.

"The surface has only been scratched," he said, "all fields are practically unexplored."

He declared that in China everything is backward from what it is in America. For example, the stamp is put on the back of the letter and the compass points south.

Mr. Hooper told the student body that the Chinese have three religions and one person can believe in all three at one time.

In closing Yee Kawan, local Chinaman, was presented and spoke a few words.

CERLE D'HONNEUR ET SUCCES

John Teal, senior, has probably made more plays of Circleville High a success than any other person in the High School. All back stage work has been handled by him. He has also done all the electrical work. He has been a mascot of the Circleville High School Band for this year. Through his work in the play, "The Yellow Shadow" he has become a member of the National Theatians.

Mildred Rummel, senior, is also included in the Cercle because of her flawless portrayal of Cecily in the past presentation of senior class play, "The King Rides By," which was presented May 18 and 19 in the High School Auditorium under the direction of C. F. Hax. Miss Rummel took the part on only two days notice.

EPHILON MU SIGMA

The "C" boys captured five firsts, two seconds, and three thirds finishing with a total of 34 points. SENIOR DAY IS A WHIZ-BANG

The annual Senior Day was a whiz-bang. Most of the seniors turned back to their childhood days when they wore short pants, short dresses and hair ribbons and when there was not heavy problems to their carefree days.

Most of the girls were clad in short dresses with dolls in their arms and ribbons in their hair. Rosemary Jackson, Ellen Bennett and Katherine Foreman were dressed in long dresses worn in the days of yore. Several of the boys wore short sleeved shirts and knee pants. John Maxey, barefooted and Ned Griner were dressed as working farmers.

Terry Hitchcock represented Robin Hood and Charles Glitt and John Styers were the sheiks. All they made a very colorful crowd with their bright ribbons, neck ties, dresses, and shirts. Nearly all of them took advantage of the laxity of discipline.

RICH WOMAN FOUND SLAIN

Police Hunt Son After Investigating: Widow of Millionaire.

FLINT, Mich., May 27 — Mrs. Bruce McDonald, 54, millionaire Flint clubwoman, was found slain today in her palatial home, according to police report.

Details were lacking in first reports.

Mrs. McDonald's fortune was estimated at $3,000,000 when her husband, one-time president of the First National Bank, died two years ago.

The mother and son, according to police, had engaged in a series of quarrels, climaxing, neighbors said, when the boy twice within the last two weeks, chased his mother from the house waving a pistol.

Police said a detective had been stationed at the palatial McDonald home until midnight, after Mrs. McDonald reported that she and her son had "a serious argument," and demanded protection. The detective left his post shortly after midnight, police believed the slaying was done sometime between midnight and eight a. m.

The detective, Charles Rabb, said he left the house when Mrs. McDonald assured him that the "danger" was past, and the boy would not be likely to return during the night.

Invented Pari-Mutuel Plan

A Frenchman named Oiler invented the pari-mutuel system of betting on horse races in about 1872. In 1880 a man in New Zealand named Ekberg, who had studied Oiler's procedure, conceived the idea of automatically recording bets. He devised a machine for the purpose, called it a totalizer, and used it for the first time at the Canterbury Jockey club's meeting at Christchurch, New Zealand, in 1880. It was not until 1908 that the pari-mutuel system of betting was methodically exploited in the United States, and in the spring of that year it was adopted in Kentucky.

Did You Know

By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT the greatest uprising of mob violence in this city occurred on Aug. 16, 1861, when 700 white persons incensed by a report of an attack by several negroes on a respected German woman, stormed through the negro neighborhoods of the town destroying and burning property. The event was an outgrowth of an affair which occurred on Sunday evening, August 15. As the wife of a prominent German citizen with her child was walking down the street, a party of negroes came along and insulted her. When the matter became generally known on Monday, it created intense excitement among the citizens. Thirteen suspicious negro characters were arrested and lodged in jail and during the day crowds of people gathered about the jail and mayor's office. In the evening the crowd at first numbering 300 started a parade through the negro neighborhoods of the city "to frighten the colored folk and show them the feeling of the people over the outrage some of them allegedly committed," newspapers of the time commented. Mayor Jason Case, Marshal Maiden and many other leading citizens attempted to refrain and pacify the crowd and were efficient in doing so. The Herald of the time relates, until the group arrived opposite the house of Robert Randolph, a S. Pickaway at colored barber. As a part of the group pressed in near the barber shop, a gun was fired into the crowd. The bullet struck an old man named Bauers who with Mayor Case and others was attempting to pacify the crowd. The group at this time had grown to 700 and was at once converted into a mob wild with excitement and determined upon violence and vengeance. Hundreds of persons rushed into the Randolph house breaking windows and doors, destroying its contents and finally setting fire to it. During the fury, a heavy rain came on, but it retarded neither the raging fire nor the efforts of the mob. After accomplishing the total destruction of the Randolph house, inflicting other damage in the neighborhood, and making some ineffectual efforts to find Randolph, the crowd dispersed, leaving in its wake a scene of destruction.

ECONOMY ACT CAUSING WOE

Reed Charges That Heartless Cruelty Shown Veterans By Measure.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Charges that veterans are being treated with heartless cruelty under the $500,000,000 economy act piled in Congress today.

Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, leading senate foe of bonus payment demands and for years an advocate of veterans' retraining, went over to the opposition group.

"The administration is paying transportation of the forestry camp men on a basis of 2,200 miles for each worker enlisted," the senator declared. "At the same time, it is denying transportation to veterans discharged from the hospitals. This is a shocking injustice."

Senator Huey P. (Kingfish) Long (D) of Louisiana asked if it would not be better to "undo this whole bill."

"I doubt if a corporal's guard would have voted for the economy bill if we had known of these harsh administrative provisions," Reed replied.

Senator Black (D) of Alabama revealed he has called President Roosevelt's attention to the fact that there are 15,000 vacant beds in government hospitals.

"Yet veterans with service-connected disabilities incurred in peace-time are being denied hospitalization," he added.

Effort to Insert Sales Tax Fails; Final Vote is 324 to 76

TRUST LAWS 'OUT'

Senate Vote Expected Sometime Next Week

WASHINGTON, May 27.—President Roosevelt's "Prosperity Bill"—embracing a new deal for industry and the jobless but providing a heavier tax for the little income taxpayer on the average citizen—was sent to the senate today after its triumphant passage in the house.

The bill, which suspends anti-trust laws to permit combination of industry and labor, carries a $3,300,000,000 public works program and a $700,000,000 tax plan, probably will be called up in the senate late next week.

Drastic revision of the tax plan in the senate was forecast as a result of revelations in the Morgan inquiry and widespread opposition to harsh tax increases upon the average citizen.

VOTE 329 TO 76

After Democratic leaders twice saved the bill from being wrecked by narrow margins, the house rallied on the final vote and passed it 324 to 76.

Before final passage a bi-partisan coalition proposed to substitute a manufacturers' sales tax for the income tax boost, gasoline tax, bank check tax and other miscellaneous sales tax, but the effort failed, 137 to 265.

Backers of the sales tax provision, bitterly disappointed, charged that "deal" were made on highway allocations and political pressure was used to defeat their attempt. Several members who had announced that they would support the sales tax turned against it on the roll-call.

As passed the bill carried a tax amendment growing directly out of the fact that J. P. Morgan and company paid no income tax for two years.

Under this amendment taxpayers cannot use net losses in one year to offset income taxes in the next. Claims were made by Democratic spokesmen—and disputed—that the provision would curtail the deductions made by the Morgan company if a similar situation arises in the future.

FILL LOOP HOLES

To quell the rebellion against the tax provisions, the ways and means committee promised to open next week a general investigation of the tax laws to plug up loopholes.

The industrial recovery bill, called the capstone of the president's program, authorizes:

Formation of trade associations to set up codes of fair competition with approval of the president, the codes being designed to fix minimum wages, limit hours of labor and fix other working conditions.

All anti-trust laws in conflict with the provisions are set aside.

The wrecked plane is believed here to be that of Dr. Victor DeWar, Grand Junction, Colo., physician and flier. GOVERNOR NOT TO SIGN EXTENDERS

Clerk of Courts Ferd M. Pickens and Mrs. Mary G. Morris, county recorder, will enjoy the benefits of two term-extender bills passed by the Ohio General Assembly and signed by Governor White, but the hopes of other county officials to receive like extenders were doomed Friday when Gov. White announced that "the raid for term-extenders had gone far enough," and he would sign no more bills of this kind.

Mr. Pickens and Mrs. Morris will serve until Jan. 1, 1937, as the result of the clerk's and recorder's term-extender bills.

CRASH HURTS DUVALL MAN

Al Musselman, of Duvall, sustained a fractured knee Friday afternoon when his Pontiac sedan collided with a Chevrolet sedan driven by W. H. Freedman, Cincinnati, paint salesman, on Route 23, two miles north of South Bloomfield.

The Musselman car was going north and the Freedman car south. The Pontiac overturned and went into a ditch and the two occupants, Freedman and Albert B. C. Wahlke, also of Cincinnati, were trapped and could not extricate themselves until aid came.

Both of the men sustained slight cuts on the hands from flying glass while Musselman, besides the injured knee, was cut about the face. He was removed to Ashville and treated by a physician there.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputies Bryan Custer and Karl Radcliff were called to the scene and directed traffic until the wrecked cars could be removed from the highway.

The Chevrolet was brought to the Circleville Motors garage where it was found that the front of the car was practically demolished and that the frame was broken. The Pontiac was taken to an Ashville garage. It, too, was badly damaged.

Mrs. F. E. Barnhill, N. Court-st., suffered bruises Friday when the automobile she was driving struck a telephone pole near the icehouse.

STOCKS AGAIN RISE

NEW YORK, May 27.—A wild boom in security and commodity markets for the second day, and a crash in the dollar, today marked the administration's bill in Congress to abolish the gold payment clause in all public and private American obligations.

Stocks skyrocketed 1 to more than 8 points after yesterday's gains running to over 45 points. A buying stampede with blocks running to 25,000 shares swept the list and the high speed circuit was swamped. Gold stocks set the pace.

The dollar crashed 7 to 74 points against foreign currencies, the Dutch guilder scoring the biggest rise, Sterling spurted 4 1/2 cents to $3.91. Weakness was duplicated in foreign markets.

Commodities zoomed led by wheat and silver, the former soaring more than 3 cents a bushel and silver 1 1/2 cents an ounce. Bonds were strong.

Home Education
 Eight thousand veterans of all battlefields of the European War met at Geneva not long ago in an anti-war demonstration. These veterans had in their ranks many blind, crippled and gassed. They represented the eight million men who were trying to kill each other fifteen years ago "to make the world safe for democracy." They see the fruits of their efforts: dissipation and a state of world chaos.
 "Peace, peace at any price, peace by every means, a peace above all pleaded one of their leaders and his sentiments were endorsed by all the representatives. They came, he said, "to save our children and civilization from danger of a return to barbarism." "They came to get peace in law, peace guaranteed collectively by all nations, by a common law binding all."
 These sentiments are shared by the majority of the peoples of all nations. The world has learned that it is too costly to fight, that warfare is outside the pale of morals and that peace and security are the indispensable safeguards of human progress.

THE CHALLENGE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day, upon each occasion of its return should stimulate us to greater loyalty and a finer patriotism, manifested by a deeper consecration to the task of making America great and good, of establishing more securely the principles of justice and liberty for which she stands.

We are greatly in need of training to make us peace-conscious. No one is shouting for peace. No one is dying for peace. Peace has no advocates as spectacular as those who with fiery oratory proclaimed the burning issues of the day. If the Prince of Peace had His way, there would be no violence. The principle of armed force is contrary to the doctrine of love which Christ proclaimed. It is our duty today to sow seeds of love and peace and brotherhood and make impossible future wars exacting such heavy toll in the death of our heroic soldiers.

Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH MEMORIAL SUNDAY?

SHIRES OBTAINS LAWYER TO FIGHT LOUISVILLE SUIT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 27.—Arthur "Whitman" Shires surveyed his latest trouble, today and found the prospects disconcerting, especially the suit for $50,000 damages which came as an anti-climax to a knock-down-and-drag-out affair which landed Mr. Jack Deacon in the hospital.

Things looked so dark that the modest Columbus first baseman hired an attorney, Roscoe Searcy. Searcy will represent Shires at the hearing on June 29 regarding the malicious assault charge brought against Shires.

Shires, well plastered with bandages and adhesive tape, gave $1,000 bond in police court. A like bond was posted by James Adair, Louisville second baseman who was held on the same charge of assault.

It was explained that Adair "thought he was being rolled by a girl," and Deacon went to the girl's defense. Shires, police were told, rallied to the defense of Adair and in the mixup Deacon was pitched downstairs by Shires, he charged.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

IT'S mighty hard for some women to get any kind of a compliment out of their husbands. A guy will tell a girl all kinds of dizzy things about herself, but after he marries her he's afraid he'll run out of adjectives for the other women if he uses them all up on his wife.

Well, this here Mrs. Jones was fishing for a compliment. "You kinda thought I was different from the other girls you knew, didn't you, John?"

"Why, yes, you was different."

"Wasn't that why you married me?"

"Yes, you're right there."

"Well, tell me then, how was I different from the other girls you knew?"

"Why, you'd marry me and they wouldn't."

Recognition of Soviet

WHETHER the action of President Roosevelt in addressing a copy of his peace message to the president of Russia constituted recognition of the soviet is a question that has stirred considerable discussion in Washington.

Many, some of them supposedly well versed in such matters, contend that it was at least technical recognition.

We believe this may be conceded without damaging the cause of advocates of non-recognition.

The president wanted his appeal to apply to Russia as well as other nations and took the only course available to get it before that country in a way in which it would receive consideration. His action was recognition as far as the immediate purpose in mind, evidently deemed by him an urgent one, was concerned.

This, though, does not mean that the wall between the United States and Russia has been broken down. It doesn't mean that diplomatic relations have been established between the two countries and the door opened to the advantages or disadvantages that this would bring.

Technical recognition may have been given the soviet but not practical recognition. Only the appointment of an ambassador to Moscow and acceptance of a diplomatic representative from the Reds would meet the latter requirements.

It may be that Mr. Roosevelt contemplates extending formal and complete recognition, when and if this be done it will be done in the recognized manner and not indirectly. This seems to be a safe assumption.

But we notice that Henry Ford, who said that prosperity was more harmful than adversity, hasn't thrown his money away.

How Tammany Thrives

FURTHER strength to the fusion movement in New York should be given by the report of the Civil Service Reform association showing how Tammany violates the civil service law in placing its henchmen in secure and well-paying jobs.

According to the report, based upon an examination of records, New York City taxpayers now are supporting a $7,000,000 political payroll. Salaries of these political appointees, many of whom perform no essential service, range from $2,500 to $12,000 a year.

"The exemption of positions from competitive examination," said the report, "would of itself be of relatively little importance were it not for the fact that at least 85 percent of such positions are filled solely to take care of political followers. Generally they are filled in utter disregard of the needs of the service, and in ruthless defiance of the public demand for economies in public administration."

Mayor O'Brien was attacked in the report for this appointment policies.

The condition complained of is not new. It reflects one of the routine methods of Tammany in keeping its stranglehold on the nation's largest city. But, in view of the rebellious attitude shown by the voters in the last mayoralty election, turning the spotlight on it now may have a wholesome effect in the coming campaign.

An eminent financial expert declares that conditions are improving. Nevertheless we think that conditions are improving.

True to His Colors

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

Wolfe had been gone an hour when Jess came back from the moor. She looked self-conscious and shy, but was able to smile and shake back her hair. Mary Mascall was still sitting under the cypress.

"I've been waiting tea, child. John Wolfe had to get back."

Jess sat down on the grass with her arms about her knees.

"Was he?"

"What, Jess?"

"Angry?"

"Angry! I never saw a man more pleased. I told him you were out on the moor somewhere. He told me to thank you and to say he is as proud of Turpin as—Angry, indeed!"

Jasper Turrell was in his greenhouse at Beech Hill, nosing about in his keen, mistrustful way, his long lips puckered about the stump of a cigar. Turrell never fully enjoyed the good things that belonged to him, simply because of a natural meanness and thinness of disposition. Nothing ever quite pleased him. He was forever grumbling at his gardeners, and suspecting them of selling fruit and vegetables behind his back. He made a habit of counting the peaches and nectarines on his trees, and any discrepancies had to be explained. If a friend admired his roses, he would sneer bitterly and say, "Nothing like what they should have been! I can't make these men of mine prune and syringe properly." He was forever discovering ugly insects under the stones of life, focusing the one gap in a bid of gorgeous flowers.

"Are you there, Dad?"

The younger Turrell's figure showed through the glass, distorted slightly by crinkles in the panes.

"Hallo, Tor."

Hector Turrell's typical attitude was one of lounging self-satisfaction. He was, what many a poor cad desired to be, the ideal of impossible dreams on thirty shillings a week. Young Turrell had his fists stuffed into the pockets of his riding breeches, his black-and-white check waistcoat hunched up over them. He stood with his feet wide apart, and his lower jaw thrust out.

"I have just picked up a bit of news."

"News, eh?"

"That chap Wolfe had put up his plate in Navestock."

"Bosh!"

"It's true, Young Kinnis told me this morning. He's up on Peachy Hill."

Jasper Turrell's red eyelids came close together. He twisted the cigar round in his mouth.

"What the devil does he mean by that? Surely Threadgold had an agreement—"

"What about old Crabbe?"

"Crabbe!"

"He may have taken the chap up," Turrell snarled.

This particular meeting of the Navestock Guardians was destined to be memorable by reason of its implications. Robert Flemming held his usual place as chairman in the big, padded-leather chair, his fine florid and whitening head deserving the brush of the portrait painter. The room was a dull room with long, melancholy windows looking out upon a yard. Turrell sat on Flemming's right, his long legs stretched out, a sprawling figure that sneered. Little Wilks al-ways had a fistful of papers, which he sniffed at attentively, much like a squirrel devouring a nut. Landry and Petersen, two country members, sat side by side, exchanging scandalous stories in gloating undertones. The other members were tradesmen—heavy men who took their duties with a serious eye on personal economies. Old Crump, the clerk, leathery, pink-gilled, and sardonic, had mischievous twinkles in his porcine eyes. He turned his impertinent and abrupt nose this way and that like an old dog casting about for a scent. He was a cynic, and it delighted him to see people lose their tempers.

He had a chance that morning when it fell to him to read a certain formal letter that had been addressed to the Navestock Guardians. The letter complained of a "nuisance" in George Lane, and the writer desired to have the "nuisance" abated. The details were put with strength and savour. Crump sniffed as he read it. A familiar and penetrating odour seemed to force its way into the room.

Crump took a delight in setting people by the ears, provided it could be done delicately and without personal inconvenience. There was an uneasy scraping of feet, a tilting of chairs. Queer, slanting glances were thrown at Jasper Turrell. His fellow Guardians watched him inquisitively, but they shirked meeting Turrell's eyes.

"George Lane, is it, Mr. Crump? And from Burgess the cobbler?"

"That's the signature, Mr. Flemming."

The silence was full of hesitancy. Turrell drew in his long legs, and sat up with a jerk of defiance.

"I am not shy, gentlemen. It seems that someone has a quarrel with my property. Let us have it out. If anyone wishes to discuss my management of my property—"

He looked round insolently, ready to thrust a challenge under his neighbours' noses. But though Turrell was an unpopular man, he was the chief of a clan, and his fellow-clansmen knew it. It was a subtle question of self-preservation, and these men of property instantly drew together when the interests of property were threatened. A common instinct made for unanimity. Like members of a big family they might quarrel among themselves, but they rallied and drew together when one of the clan was threatened by an outsider.

Johnson the butcher, the colour of his own raw meat, spoke up gruffly from a corner.

"Mr. Chairman, seems to me, sir, Mr. Turrell's a gentleman who can be left to look after his own property. We shake along very well in Navestock, sir. I don't hold with mischief-making."

Turrell smiled, his long mouth crinkling curiously between his sandy whiskers. He and Johnson had a proper understanding.

Robert Flemming's eyes wandered from face to face.

"Has anyone—"

"It appears to me to be a vexatious complaint—"

"Tss, that's the very word I was trying to think of, Mr. Wilks."

"It nails the thing to the counter, Mr. Hubbard."

"Like a bad coin, sir. I always say that things ought to be done with good feeling. I am against stirring up bad blood. The men of property in the town have public spirit."

Robert Flemming turned his head this way and that, gravely, questioningly. Turrell lay back in his chair.

"I am quite content to leave myself in your hands, gentlemen."

"I think we can leave a gentleman of Mr. Turrell's position to control his own property."

Wilks's eyes twinkled as though he had cracked an unusually fine nut.

Hay Fever 'Season' Near, Take Precautions Now

Treatment Before the Disease Gains Headway Is More Beneficial—Sensitivity Tests Aid in Determining Cause and Remedy

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 United States senator from New York
 Former Commissioner of Health,
 New York City

AT THIS time of the year I receive many letters requesting information about hay fever. We are approaching the hay fever season. The victims of this ailment know that unless they quickly take the necessary precautions they are doomed to weeks or months of intolerable suffering.

If hay fever is a disease characterized by a sensitivity to certain pollens, the pollens may come from trees, grasses or ragweed. When exposed to these pollens the victim complains of itching and congestion of the eyes. There is a thin and irritating discharge from the nose. The inside of the mouth itches and there are violent attacks of sneezing.

"Perennial Hay Fever"

The symptoms are aggravated by repeated exposure to the offending pollen or plant. As a rule, the suffering is more marked in the morning and relieved as evening approaches. The sensitivity persists as long as the offending substance is within reach of the patient.

"Perennial hay fever" is a form of hay fever present throughout the year. The sufferer from this form of hay fever is sensitive to animal danders, vegetable powders, house dust, foods, or drugs. The symptoms are identical with those caused by a pollen or plant.

The symptoms are aggravated by repeated exposure to the offending pollen or plant. As a rule, the suffering is more marked in the morning and relieved as evening approaches. The sensitivity persists as long as the offending substance is within reach of the patient.

"Perennial hay fever" is a form of hay fever present throughout the year. The sufferer from this form of hay fever is sensitive to animal danders, vegetable powders, house dust, foods, or drugs. The symptoms are identical with those caused by a pollen or plant.

Do not confuse hay fever with asthma. The asthmatic sufferer has difficulty in breathing and complains that he cannot catch his breath. The hay fever patient can breathe, but it causes him great discomfort. Of course a victim of hay fever may also be a sufferer from asthma, both diseases existing at the same time.

Vaccine Treatment

It is only within recent years that a hopeful remedy for hay fever has been discovered. The treatment is not successful in all cases. It consists of the injection of vaccines made from a solution of the ragweed pollen or other pollen to which the victim is sensitive.

The injections must be given over a long period of time and preferably before the hay fever season begins. By means of "sensitivity tests" it is possible to determine the plant, pollen or substance to which the sufferer is sensitive. When this is discovered, the vaccine is made and then injected.

Unfortunately, the relief is only temporary and the injections must be repeated. If you are a sufferer from hay fever, now is the time to consult with your physician. Also, I would advise you to take the necessary measures if you are a victim of autumn hay fever or perennial hay fever.

The "Flood"

By Charles E. Diehlman Jr.
Swollen streams that once were quiet,
Noisily dash along their way.
Rain is falling—the ground is sodden
Oh, when will come the sun-lit day?

Never stopping, the rain keeps falling.
The river rises, then breaks out.
And floods the land for miles around.
Destroying homes, without a doubt.

Far and wide, the muddy waters soak, and rot, and inundate
The farmers' sheds, their barns and homes—
Water conquers; its force is great.
Alas! too late the flood subsides.
The rushing waters have caused destruction,
And man must now repair and build.

In other words, start reconstruction.

C.H.S. GOLFERS PLACE SECOND IN C. B. L.

The annual league golf meet was held Monday 22 and was won by Grandview. Circleville was runner up and Westerville, finished third. Marysville, Bexley and Delaware finished in order. Circleville did considerably better than last year when they finished third. A margin of only seven strokes separated the two this year.

Johnny Mader led the field with a score of 81. He was low medalist last year and successfully defended his laurels.

Grandview had practically the same team back from last year and it was advantageous to them. They won the district meet and finished fourth in the state meet.

In a group of three coach golfers, coach Herberholz was the winner, his score for the 18 holes was 97.

Scores for Circleville are as follows:
John Mader 81; Bob Fricke, 92; Charley Glitt, 96; Lee Cook 99.

Education Is Needed, Says Mr. Eagleson

BY SUPT. J. O. EAGLESON

During the early history of mankind, schools were not required for the training of the youth in primitive society because the conditions of living were so simple then that they could be mastered by direct contact and experience of the young with the old. But during our time social and economic conditions have so changed and society has become so complex that no one would be capable of fitting in this modern progress without a course of training in a systematic manner. Thus it is a systematic matter, economic for society to organize schools of training for our youth. The demands for educational training do not come from national institutions themselves. They come from the ones of society outside of the schools.

The American high school has its origin and its present curriculum of studies founded upon the foregoing in a very striking manner. Developing rapidly as it has in the past 40 or 50 years, the high school has expanded its curriculum with the existing demands made by society for equipping the youth with such social experiences as the race needs for entering adult profession or occupations. It has offered new courses to meet the needs of our present pupil population as these demands are made upon it by our new advances in our ever-increasing standards of living.

This high school population has been equal in numbers in the past as in any other country. Through compulsory attendance laws it is now approaching the total number of high school youth of this age in our country. Other nations are now engaged in an effort to develop for their youths some of the opportunities which democratic American youth are privileged to enjoy.

All these added courses to the high school curriculum require specialists to teach them. This specialist population is as varied as the subjects which are taught. Hence a wide range of subjects has grown up during the past half century for taking care of this varied pupil population in our country almost all of this has been furnished free to the pupils. Hence, the cost of running these high schools has mounted into millions of dollars. All this has been raised through taxation. The people have borne this so far without much murmuring. Possibly more complaint has been registered against the increasing cost during the past year than ever before. There is a limit to the amount the people can pay for the upkeep of these high schools.

However much society needs the training given in the high school, some reduction in the cost is imminent. We hear and read much about how the reduction should be made. The depression has brought us face to face with this problem. Many curtailments have been made during the past year and more are to come. We have been called upon to balance our budgets. It must be done in industry to keep the wheels moving. Schools are forced to do the same.

Critics of the high school have at times failed to understand the social background out of which our secondary education has evolved. They have been influenced by traditional views regarding the curriculum. Traditional subjects and traditional methods of teaching are being eliminated in the interests of an educational plan more closely related to the present-day industry, commerce and professional life.

If any changes are to be made in the high school curriculum due to economy from a financial standpoint, the teaching profession should be consulted about these. The educational institutions must set up the methods by which the objectives are accomplished. One of the gravest difficulties in the development of a sound secondary education in our country is the maladministration of institutions resulting from interference by the lay boards.

GOLF TEAM

Circleville High school's golf team played Westerville on the Pickaway Country Club golf links Thursday afternoon.

Lee Cook, John Mader, John Jenkins and Bob Friese made up the team from Circleville. John Jenkins and Bob Friese tied for low man on nine holes. They both shot a 38.

Bob Friese was low man on 18 holes shooting a pretty 78. Lee Cook shot an 89 on 18 holes. Johnny Mader shot nine holes and then conceded to his opponent. The final score was nine to three with Circleville on the long end of the score.

MUSIC FESTIVAL

Next Friday is the School Festival in which the High School and Junior Orchestra and Junior and Senior Band will participate. We want all persons possible to come to the event. This is the first to be given in the school. Special numbers will be played by the members of these organizations and numbers by the organizations themselves. The organization wishes to express that there will be no charges.

Elizabeth Dowden, Sophomore, is the Editor for this issue.

Rader Honored

In recognition of her excellent interpretation of Lorraine, the maid, in the senior class play, "The King Rides By," Gene Rader has been awarded the director's pin which is emblematic of outstanding achievement in dramatics.

Miss Rader had more cues than any of the feminine parts and she also had a dual role to portray. She was very consistent in changing from Lorraine, the maid, to Lil, the crook, at all times. Her work was a paramount factor in making the play a success.

M. HOOPER SPEAKS BEFORE STUDENTS

Merle Hooper of Cleveland was the speaker at an assembly held Tuesday at 3:00. He talked on "China and Its Ways." Fred C. Clark introduced the speaker.

Mr. Hooper said the oldest date in Chinese history is 2852 B. C. He told the school that the Chinese have 43,000 characters while the English language has only 26.

The surface has only been scratched," he said, "all fields are practically unexplored."

He declared that in China everything is backward from what it is in America. For example, the stamp is put on the back of the letter and the compass points south.

Mr. Hooper told the student body that the Chinese have three religions and one person can believe in all three at one time.

In closing Yee Kawan, local Chinaman, was presented and spoke a few words.

CIRCLE HONOR ET SUCCES

John Teal, senior, has probably made more plays of Circleville High a success than any other person in the High School. All back stage work has been handled by him. He has also done all the electrical work. He has been a mascot of the Circleville High School Band for this year. Through his work in the play, "The Yellow Shadow" he has become a member of the National Theatians.

Mildred Rummel, senior, is also included in The Circle because of her flawless portrayal of Cecily in the past presentation of senior class play, "The King Rides By," which was presented May 18 and 19 in the High School Auditorium under the direction of C. F. Hax. Miss Rummel took the part on only two days notice.

SENIOR DAY IS A WHIZ-BANG

The annual Senior Day was a whiz-bang. Most of the seniors turned back to their childhood days when they wore short pants, short dresses and hair ribbons and when there was not heavy problems to their carefree days.

Most of the girls were clad in short dresses with dolls in their arms and ribbons in their hair. Rosemary Jackson, Ellen Bennett and Katherine Foreman were dressed in long dresses worn in the days of yore. Several of the boys wore short sleeved shirts and knee pants. John Maxey, barefooted and Ned Griner were dressed as working farmers.

Terry Hitchcock represented Robin Hood and Charles Glitt and John Styers were the sheiks. In all they made a very colorful crowd with their bright ribbons, neck ties, dresses, and shirts. Nearly all of them took advantage of the laxity of discipline.

RICH WOMAN FOUND SLAIN

Police Hunt Son After Investigating: Widow of Millionaire.

FLINT, Mich., May 27 — Mrs. Bruce McDonald, 54, millionaire Flint clubwoman, was found slain today in her palatial home, according to police report.

Details were lacking in first reports.

Mrs. McDonald's fortune was estimated at $3,000,000 when her husband, one-time president of the First National Bank, died two years ago.

The mother and son, according to police, had engaged in a series of quarrels, climaxed, neighbors said, when the boy twice within the last two weeks, chased his mother from the house waving a pistol.

Police said a detective had been stationed at the palatial McDonald home until midnight, after Mrs. McDonald reported that she and her son had "a serious argument," and demanded protection. The detective left his post shortly after midnight, police believed the slaying was done sometime between midnight and eight a. m.

The detective, Charles Rabb, said he left the house when Mrs. McDonald assured him that the "danger" was past, and the boy would not be likely to return during the night.

Invented Pari-Mutuel Plan

A Frenchman named Oller invented the pari-mutuel system of betting on horse races in about 1872. In 1880 a man in New Zealand named Ekberg, who had studied Oller's procedure, conceived the idea of automatically recording bets. He devised a machine for the purpose, called it a totalizer, and used it for the first time at the Canterbury Jockey club's meeting at Christchurch, New Zealand, in 1880. It was not until 1908 that the pari-mutuel system of betting was methodically exploited in the United States, and in the spring of that year it was adopted in Kentucky.
